

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a parts management system for a mobile unit, a detection unit is provided at the mobile unit and adapted to detect information related to management of parts of the mobile unit such as a vehicle. A service center management unit is provided at a service center and permitted to communicate to the detection unit. The service center management unit is adapted to produce information for a user of the mobile unit according to the information related to the management of the parts of the mobile unit and detected by the detection unit. An information unit is permitted to communicate to the service center management unit and adapted to send to the user of the mobile unit the information for the user of the mobile unit and produced by the service center management unit.